

4 Bathroom Design Updates for Spring

When spring comes, we're constantly reminded of how beautiful our natural surroundings can be as they unfold. We enjoy the change, new energy, and the good weather, which inspires us to remodel our homes and make them feel and look more rejuvenated.

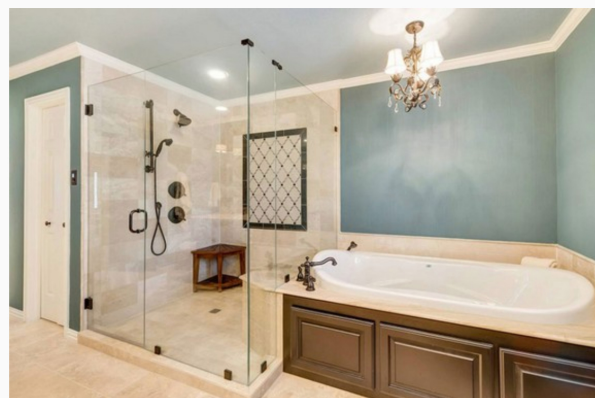

If you're planning a home improvement this year, now is a good moment to think about those spaces of the house that often get neglected. This is certainly the case for bathrooms. Luckily, a few nifty design tricks are all you need for a serene sanctuary. If you're tired of looking at the same floor tiles and fixtures, why not give it a little personality this spring? It might be more simple than you might expect.

To get in the mood, read on and discover a few fine tips for turning this space into a dazzling paradise.

1. Open it up with a dash of color

Many studies have found light beneficial for both health and productivity, so it's no surprise our bodies are naturally drawn to sunlight when we wake up. Due to its hard surfaces and dark colors, the bathroom often feels cold. This is one of the main reasons why it's essential to brighten it up to make it feel more inviting.

Mirrors and reflective surfaces will make any bathroom appear brighter and larger, but even in a room without windows, you can use color to accentuate light and space. To lighten up your bathroom, simply get rid of black and brown and replace them with a brighter palette. Think of mint, yellow, green, and shades of pink as the perfect standouts for spring.

2. Use relaxing lighting schemes

Lighting is probably one of the major components of interior design. It affects our perception, stimulates our senses, and completely alters the appearance of the room. The vanity area typically has light bars, wall sconces, and pendants, while chandeliers are popular choices in larger bathrooms, either centered in the room or hanging over a freestanding tub. No matter what size your bathroom is, create a seamless, innovative scheme that works for you and turns it into a mini-retreat for your mind and body.

3. Add nature-inspired touches

Bathrooms with natural materials create a welcoming atmosphere that puts you at ease from the moment you step inside. Incorporating natural elements like wooden countertops or cabinets can immediately add a sense of calm to your space. Also, if you're planning an upcoming bathroom renovation this spring, choosing materials such as ceramics and textured stone will revitalize and ground the overall space.

4. Bring comfort & convenience with smart tech

The process of renewal after a long and cold winter is a sight to behold, but its effects often make you groggy. You can alleviate these seasonal changes in many different ways, and one of them is to start and end each day in comfort.

Even though it may seem like a glimpse into the distant future, smart products are already available and can greatly improve your daily life:

- Digital faucets: They sense hand motions to turn the water on and off and have plenty of programmable features.
- Smart showers: Preheat your bathroom water so you can take a shower the moment you walk in.

Smart toilets: Smart toilets allow you to open or close their lids with the wave of your hand. What's more, seats can be equipped with antimicrobial protection and are self-cleaning.
